ATTENDANCE AT UNION DINING ROOM NOT AS SATISFACTORY AS MIGHT BE

A few days ago McGill Daily had occasion to complain of the poor attendance of members of the student body at the dining room of the Students' Union, a building devoted to the interests of undergraduates and erected by Sir William Macdonald, with a view to providing a suitable social centre for those in attendance at the University. The appeal for more liberal patronage of the dining room, whether because of its lack of force or by reason of the apathy of undergraduates, seemingly has had little effect upon the state of affairs of which complaint was made. It is true that there has been a slight increase in the number of students who are in the habit of eating their mid-day meal at their own clubhouse, but this increase has not been large enough to warrant the situation being referred to as satisfactory. Actual figures show that within the last few days a number of men in attendance at the dining room has been in the neighborhood of 175, a showing which does little credit to a student body of approximately 800 males, the great majority of whom have three meals a day in restaurants or other eating-places in the neighborhood of the University. To cover actual expenditure it is essential that at least 300 meals be served in the Union dining room every day, and this does not seem too much to ask of so large a number of undergraduates.

Perhaps it is not recognized by students that not only are meals served on the table d'hôte plan, but also that they may be secured a la carte, which often finds more favour with students, especially at breakfast time. It seems inexplicable that students who reside in the vicinity of the University will prefer to walk down town for their meals when they can secure them within a much shorter distance at more reasonable rates. University professors are regular attendants at the Union dining room, and are strong in their praises of the catering. Indeed, there have only been a few individual complaints since the season opened, and these have been immediately rectified. Never before has such a meal been served at the Union at such reasonable rates as are now in force. Few other colleges which maintain eating-places for students have cause to complain of non-support. That the sum aimed at in the whirlwind Y. M. C. A. financial campaign had been oversubscribed by over $1000 was the cheerful announcement made at the headquarters of the canvassers last evening. While the captains and teams of the different faculties set out to secure $1,000 to carry on the work of the McGill Y. M. C. A., at home and abroad, the amount turned in by subscriptions up to last night was $1,120.80, and there is every reason to believe that when every report is made, the total amount subscribed will stand in the neighborhood of $1,300. This sum is in advance of the largest subscription in advance of peace times, and can be accounted for through the desire of many to see the field branch of the Association operating in connection with No. 3 Canadian General Hospital (McGill) at Boulogne, France, is properly financed without the necessity of applying for assistance to graduates and others not directly connected with the University.

As was predicted, the Seniors in Medicine hold the lead in the matter of class contributions with the sum of $93 to their credit. Arts '20, numerically the largest class in the University, is in second place with $87, while Science '17 stands third with $82. Medicine also leads in the inter-faculty race, with Arts second.

The result of the canvass by classes

SECOND LIEUT. BENETT IS REPORTED WOUNDED

Student of Science '18 Was Serving With the Royal Field Artillery in France.

According to advices which have been received at the University, Second Lieut. Charles Morgan Bennett, of the Royal Field Artillery, a member of the class of Science '18, before he enlisted, has been wounded in the knee, and is now convalescing at the Isle of Wight. Second Lieut. Bennett, who was well known about the University when a student in the Faculty of Applied Science, enlisted here in the spring of 1915 with the machine gun section of the First Universities Company, then "D" Company of the 38th Overseas Battalion. A few weeks later the company became recognized as a reinforcements unit for the Princecess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and Pte. Bennett went overseas.

The initial meeting of the Literary and Debating Society and Canadian Club, which was held last night at Strathcona Hall, was most enjoyable and successful in every way. Every body present agreed that never since the days of the Mock Parliament has such enthusiasm been shown at a meeting of this nature.

The assembly was called to order sharp to time by the president, D. C.
Hyde. In a brief address the chairman pointed out the importance of the Society, and impressed upon the very large audience present the desirability of attending the future meetings which were to be held twice a month.

The suggestion to arrange a debate with the Delta Sigma Society of R.
V. C. was referred to the committee.

R. J. Clarke then introduced the resolution, namely, "We are resolved that the Government of Ontario is morally justified in the course which it has pursued with regard to the French schools." The speaker traced the history of the question, and showed that where the French people were in the majority in Ontario previously to the passing of the law, the French language had been the only educational language, and English was excluded. Inasmuch as Canada was a "cosmopolitan country," Mr. Clarke thought it was necessary to stamp out the different languages to prevent the formation of independent states. Canada will never be a French country, so that absolute knowledge of French language was not necessary.

In a short, forceful, address G. U.
Bourke, '17, seconded the resolution.
He explained very carefully Art. 17, which says that after the first form of education shall be given to the children of French parents, the children coming from Quebec, who could take French until they became proficient in English. Mr. Bourke took the opportunity to point out that much of the bitter feeling had been caused by the papers of Ontario misrepresenting the feelings of the French people, and brought up as an example of their true sentiments, the case where many influential Roman Catholics had asked that English be taught as the language of instruction in order that their fellow-countrymen could reap the benefits and advantages to be derived from a knowledge of the English language.

B. Benjamin, the first speaker for the negative side, corrected the previous speaker's interpretation of Article 17, saying that as corrected it divied away with the French language altogether. This gentleman was very eloquent, and rhetorical in discussing the ethical side of the question. He believed that it was a gross infringement of the personal liberties of the French people, and drew an analog between the case of the French Canadians and the peoples of India. In India each tribe is permitted to keep its own dialect.

This gentleman was followed by P.
A. G. Clarke, who mentioned the meeting between the representatives of the French and English Governments at London, held for the purpose of cementing these two races. Inasmuch as the Ontario Government's action was causing grave racial differences, which the speaker thought would never be cleared away, this action was directly opposed to the spirit

AS OTHERS SEE US.

We have commented a number of times on the aspect of McGill this year, especially in respect to the military aspect which the College has taken on, and which all must admit becomes her well. It is therefore interesting to read how the University impresses others, and on this account we quote the following article, clipped from the St. John's (Que.), News and Advocate, written by "The Bystander":

"There is something pathetic in the aspect of McGill University these days. The campus is a broken mass of earth, trampled by the feet of innumerable men drilled for the front. The classrooms are for the most part silent and deserted. The fine young spirits heard the call at the beginning of the war, and responded. That is the tragedy and also, it may be said, the glory of the University—that its finest and best, keyed up to a pure and lofty patriotism, felt the obligation which the lesser natures did not feel, and many invaluable lives were lost in the early days of the war. It has been the same in England—the great, historic Universities are empty; the undergraduates are gone to the front. To the young and high-spirited the call of a country is potential beyond all expression. If anything could redeem war from the horrible thing it is, it would be the exalted and ennobled feeling which animates the best elements in rushing to the defence of their country. In this war the Empire has lost her choicest manhood. She will not fail in man power, but the gracious youths, the beautiful lives which might have 'shaped the whisper of a throne' have been snuffed out—robbed of their chance for influential service."

THE Y. W. C. A. SALE.

The versatile Donalds have turned their hands to another means of raising money to aid the very worthy cause of the Red Cross and the Y. W. C. A. This time it is a bazaar combined with a tea-room, and a fortune telling booth. The students of the Royal Victoria College have been busy these days collecting material with which to load the tables preparatory for the sale. We are told that everything and anything will be there. Cushion tops, pennants, pictures, and novelties; candy, chocolate and all the good things which a sweet tooth enjoys; a tea room where the ones grown weary of shopping may rest and sip a good cup of tea or coffee along with more substantial refreshments; and last but by no means least a fortune telling booth with a variety of methods for seeing into the future that will please the most fastidious, or should we say the most ardent follower of the art of necromancy. By tea leaves, by cards, by palms, and if you insist, phrenology will be brought into play. You will find hundreds of things at the sale for which you can find a use, either to decorate a room, to send as Christmas presents, or to satisfy the inner man. The money realized will be devoted to a most worthy object, and every person should spare the time to visit the R. V. C. this afternoon.

GOOD WORK! "LIT."

"Can the 'Lit.' come back?" has been the question asked by a number of persons about the University, and a very definite affirmative answer was given last night, when the Bilingual issue was argued pro and con with a display of oratory and interest that has been sadly lacking in meetings of other, and especially, the last two years. The executive is to be congratulated upon choosing a live topic for discussion, and for the speaking arrangements, which gave every member present an opportunity to air his views. The fact of Laval University being sufficiently interested to send up men to see the opinions of French speaking people were presented in a straightforward manner, and without any possibility of misconception on the part of those present argues well for the interest which has been stirred up in the doings of the "Lit." not only within the University, but also among outsiders. It is such a feature which will insure success for the present session, and it only remains for the executive to follow up the principle of introducing up-to-the-minute topics to make this one of the most successful seasons which the Literary and Debating Society has ever enjoyed.

APATHETIC JUNIORS FAIL IN ATTENDANCE

Those at Third Year Meeting Decide to Publish an Annual and to Tax Students.

Although the meeting of the Junior Year held on Thursday night was for the important purpose of deciding as to whether or not an "Annual" should be published, there was very little enthusiasm displayed. It was thought that the Juniors would have turned out en masse, but such was not the case.

The first step taken was to elect officers (pro tem) of the Junior year to carry on the meeting. After a close contest the following officers were elected:

President—L. J. Jordan.
Secretary—F. L. Cann.
After considerable preliminary discussion had been dispensed with the following motions were read, and unanimously adopted:

(1)—That an Annual be published, and,
(2)—That every member of the Junior Year be assessed $2.50, two dollars of which will be taken from the caution money, and the remaining 50 cents to be paid to the Annual Board when the student's signature is obtained.

MILITARY TEAMS IN CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

244th and 178th Battalions Will Compete in the League This Winter.

The annual meeting of the Montreal City Hockey League was held last evening at the M. A. A. Club House.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—J. J. Carrick.
First Vice-President—Russell Smith.
Second Vice-President—E. Rolland.
Secretary—Treasurer—H. A. Melville.

Committee—J. Cardinal, Nationals; J. W. Rooney, McGill; W. Hill, Shamrocks; A. Larondeau, Laval; Capt. W. Molson, 244th Battalion; Lt. G. Chouinard, 187th Battalion.

Owing to the fact that both Victorias and M. A. A. are unable to operate their franchise this year, permission was granted these two clubs to transfer their franchises for one year to the 178th Battalion and the 244th Battalion respectively. The League also granted permission to these two military units to use any man on their roster irrespective of the fact of ownership by some other club in the league.

It was also decided to devote a percentage of the gate receipts to the Regimental funds of the two Battalions participating in the league, for the purpose of supplying their men with athletic equipment on leaving for the front.

DR. HORST OERTEL ADDRESSED MEDICALS

"The Relations of Embryology to Pathology" Subject of Interesting Address.

"The Relations of Embryology to Pathology" was the subject of the address delivered last evening before the Medical Society by Dr. Horst Oertel, pathologist of the Royal Victoria Hospital. Dr. Oertel opened his address by stating that he had two objects in view: to impress the importance of pre-medical science and to put forward some moderate views on the subject. Prof. Minor, of Harvard, was quoted by the speaker. Dr. Oertel's address in part was as follows: Embryology is at the basis of pathology. To understand end products we must first know the history. Pathological processes lead to changes in normal tissue. We must not study the changes so much as what the changes lead to. The relation in finished form is Formal Genesis. Of this there are two groups, one aberrant rests. These are dislocated parts and therefore do not develop at once, but later as tumours. The second is faulty development, in which the organs may not develop or only in part, and therefore give rise to pathological structures. This is exemplified in the heart as well.

The second group is Histogenesis and Organogenesis. Histogenesis: (1) growth and differentiation. In these conditions the embryonic and pathological cells closely resemble each other. The more highly developed the tissue the more its pathological growth resembles the parent structure, while the lower the type of tissue the more varied is the pathological picture. (2) Atrophy and Degeneration: These begin in the embryo and atrophy, degeneration, inflammation and necrosis occur in anti-natal life (a man begins to die as soon as he is born). Even arterio-sclerosis and endarteritis obliterans occur in the embryo. The removal of the Wolffian body is a typical haemorrhagic infiltrative destructive degeneration of tissue. We judge the pathological process by the end results, not by the course of process involved in its development.

Organogenesis. The development of an organ. There is no definite stable type of organ as a constant regressive and progressive process is going on. In normal organs these are balanced. Should this balance be upset we get pathological organs. The different organs are related in two ways: (1) as regards the harmonious action, exemplified by the heart and lungs, liver and kidney; (2) the antagonistic action, as seen in the destruction of the Wolffian body as the genital gland develops. The organ interaction of the embryo both good and bad is continued in post-natal life, as seen in the secretions of the ductless glands, the harmonious action of the thymus and thyroid and the antagonistic action of the thymus and adrenal. Under the discoveries of bacteriology we may soon be able to explain these actions. We arrive at the inevitable conclusion that health and disease as well as life and death are not antitheses, but that all are immediately related phenomena of life.

A resolution of condolence was passed in the death of Lieut. W. H. Gordon, this to be conveyed to Dr. A. H. Gordon. A motion was also carried regarding the helping of the McGill Medical Society now in existence at the McGill General Hospital in France. It was decided to postpone the date of the Medical Dinner until after the posting of the results of the Fifth Year examinations. E. Tremblay, '20, entertained the Society with a number of interesting sketches. A case report was then presented, and a warm discussion resulted.

PARCELS FOR SOLDIERS.

Mrs. Charles Bieler is sending a batch of socks and other woolen articles to Paris on November 17. Any ladies wishing to contribute to this, one of the most welcome Christmas gifts to French and Belgian soldiers, will kindly either deposit at the Bibo House, Union Ave., or send to 98, Columbia Ave., Westmount. Gifts of wool, to be knitted into socks by the Pointe-aux-Trembles Institute girls, would also be most welcome.

The lady-managers of the "Amis du Soldat," in Paris, who distribute the socks, pronounced the Canadian articles the most beautifully knitted they had ever received.

SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS. STUDIOS, 79 UNION AVENUE.

The Royal Military College of Canada.

THERE are few national institutions of more value and interest to the country than the Royal Military College of Canada. Notwithstanding this, its object and the work it is accomplishing are not sufficiently understood by the general public.
The College is a Government Institution, designed primarily for the purpose of giving instruction in all branches of military science to Cadets and Officers of the Canadian Militia. In fact, it corresponds to Woolwich and Sandhurst.
The Commandant and military instructors are all officers on the active list of the Imperial army, lent for the purpose, and there is in addition a complete staff of professors for the civil subjects which form such an important part of the College course. Medical attendance is also provided.
Whilst the College is organized on a strictly military basis the cadets receive a practical and scientific training in subjects essential to a sound modern education.
The course includes a thorough grounding in Mathematics, Civil Engineering, Surveying, Physics, Chemistry, French and English.
The strict discipline maintained at the College is one of the most valuable features of the course, and in addition, the constant practice of gymnastics, drills and outdoor exercises of all kinds, ensures health and excellent physical condition.
Commissions in all branches of the Imperial service and Canadian Permanent Force are offered annually.
The diploma of graduation is considered by the authorities conducting the examination for Dominion Land Surveyor to be equivalent to a university degree, and by the Regulations of the Law Society of Ontario, it obtains the same exemptions as a B.A. degree.
The length of the course is three years in three terms of 9 1/2 months each.
The total cost of the course, including board, uniform, instructional material, and all extras is about $800.
The annual competitive examination for admission to the college, takes place in May of each year, at the headquarters of the several military districts.
For full particulars regarding this examination and for any other information, application should be made to the secretary of the Militia Council, Ottawa, Ont., or to the Commandant, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

Pool à la Carte or, The Mystery of the Onion

"The 15 ball in the corner pocket," came in even tones from the masked figure leaning over one of the pool tables in the Union, and preparing to shoot. "Why, it is an impossible shot," said a looker-on. "It can't be did," said Mr. Culler, of the Union staff, forgetting his grammar in the excitement. A breathless silence settled on those standing around as the man in the mask drew back the cue preparatory to shooting. With infinite care he took his bearings and hit the cue ball gently. The cause of the remarks of amazement cited above was that the 8 ball was directly in line between the 15 ball and the corner pocket—how the 15 ball could be made was a mystery. As the cue touched it, it rolled gently towards the lower end of the table—just skirting the 8 ball and apparently bound to hit the cushion about 4 inches from the pocket, but it gradually curved in the arc of a wide circle and dropped square into the corner pocket, as had been called. A sigh of wonder went up from those standing by the players.

"Are we living back again in the days of black art?" they asked themselves.
"Has this man some potent charm with which he is able to exercise an influence over an inanimate object?"
"Are the witches come to live on earth again, and mix their boiling cauldron of bubbling devilment within the confines of the Union?" asked Frankie Uncommon, who was President of the Prudent Council.
"Shall we allow the student club to be turned into an ante-room of Hell, where the proteges of his Satanic Majesty may play with the destiny of man?" demanded H. R. M. Organ, President of the Union.

Evidently something had to be done. This mysterious stranger was to be found in the Billiard room every day at 2 o'clock. He wore a long velvet cloak, while a black velvet domino covered the greater portion of his face. He would challenge anyone present to a game of pool, and after playing until exactly thirteen minutes to three, he would put up his cue and vanish. At least he would walk out of the billiard room and go into the reading or lounging rooms and incidentally disappear. He had been followed and shadowed, but to no avail. He was forbidden the use of the Union, but although Culler stationed Tony the dog at the front door, and locked the back entrance, the stranger made his daily appearance in the billiard room about two o'clock—no one saw him come.

The mystery was the talk of the city, and of the world, in fact. Stephen Peacock, of McGill University, wrote a travesty on the affair in "Vanity Fair." Prof. Scodwell delivered an address to the philosophical club entitled, "The Psychology of Solid Ivory or Mind over Matter." The Committee of Quarrels and Gasoline caused a pamphlet to be printed and distributed on "The Pernicious Practices of Pool Playing by Perverted Persons as a Popular Pastime." The Montreal Daily Star and the Daily Snail had numerous pictures, and purported interviews with the mysterious one. The Noon Squid, in its "World Under" column had a long article supposed to be a cable communication, but in reality clipped from the McGill Daily, which paper was the only one not having garbled accounts of what went on. It was finally the Daily which engaged Shomolkes to solve the mystery.

It was evident from the energetic manner in which Shomolkes set about his work that the mystery would be speedily elucidated. He measured the table—every great detective makes it a point to measure every measurable thing he happens to run across. He disguised himself as a cue rack—he assumed the unobtrusive guise of a cue rest; I remember one time he undertook to impersonate a chalk receptacle standing up by the wall and holding his mouth open, grasping a piece of chalk in his teeth. "What-same!" he said to me one evening after a hard day's work, "this is a hard mystery to solve."

I had been working all day in the G. U. Ward over a malignant case of ingrowing toe nail, and on coming back to Paskit Street threw myself into a chair before the fire, intending to rest a few minutes before supper, when I was aroused from my reverie by a newsboy in the street shouting "Wuxtra! Wuxtra! Pool Mystery Solved!" I rushed into the street and snatched a paper, throwing the boy a dollar and fifteen cents in small change. There on the front page of the Evening Snooze was a picture of Nig. Garter, an upstart in the defective profession, with the information that he had succeeded in solving the mystery of the McGill Onion. Hastily reading over the account, I found the explanation was very simple—Garter, using a spirit level, found that one corner of the pool table was on a slight slant, thus making the balls roll into the pocket there.

Poor Shomolkes, I thought, how disappointed he will be, and to think that he should have allowed such a simple explanation to escape him. It was at that moment the great detective entered the apartment with a light and springy step. The lines of worry which had formed on his forehead and around his eyes were gone, and his face positively radiated happiness.

"Oh, Shomolkes," I exclaimed, "How could you! Really, the public won't buy any more of my books now that you have fallen down in this case!"
"What case?" asked Shomolkes.
"Why, the Union Case," I answered.

"I make it a point never to interfere in the conflicts between Capital and Labour," said the great investigator.

"Oh," Shomolkes, I said, "you have fallen down; you've pulled a bone, you've slipped up on a good thing, you've let that upstart Garter beat you to it, and in such a simple way, too; you know what I mean. The case of the pool player at McGill is solved and by Nig. Garter, and burying my face in my hands I wept profusely.

"Come, Whatsane," said Shomolkes, kicking me in the slats in that fatherly way of his "Buck up! Things are not as black as they seem! The Snooze is sleeping again! I HAVE REALLY SOLVED THE MYSTERY! The McGill Daily will scoop the story to-morrow morning," and with a dramatic gesture kissed me on the eyebrow.

I was too overcome with joy to say anything, but I heaved a heavy sigh of relief, and leaning back in my chair, asked Shomolkes in a weak voice for the explanation. The following is the narrative as he told it, and as it appeared exclusively in the Daily the following morning.

"The explanation of Garter was, of course childish," said Shomolkes. "One of the first things I did was to measure the table and find if it was perfectly level—at the lower left hand corner there is a drop of one-half an inch in eighty miles. Moreover, the other end of the table must have a corresponding rise. Garter overlooked this, I suppose, because of the fact that our friend, whom we shall call Mystic Mike, could drop a ball into any pocket on the table. Evidently the explanation of this pretender was not correct. I had to start out on another trail.

"I had another theory, but found it hard to prove, but succeeded in doing this one day in the following manner. As Mike was leaning over the table to shoot I bumped into him, throwing him onto the floor—there! What I wanted I found—the soles of his boots were of copper. The mystery was elucidated in one word. Electricity! the vigor of the vigorous! the hope of the helpless! The friend of man! Wearing a long cloak, it was easy to conceal a powerful storage battery on his person—wires communicated with the copper soles of his boots, which in turn formed connections with copper nails in the floor attached to wires leading to electro magnets concealed under the slats in front of the pockets on the table. When, by means of a switch, these magnets were excited, they drew the balls towards the pockets."

"But," I asked, "Ivory will not respond to magnetic influence?"

"Ha Ha!" laughed Shomolkes, "that was another stumbling block. I examined the balls and found that they were not made of metal, and also that they were not tampered with before being put on the table—I mean that they were not replaced by ones with metallic cores or anything—the balls played with were the ones sent from the manufacturers. Looking closely however, I found that a small hole had been bored in each ball, and cleverly covered over, sawing one of them in two I found the centre to be filled with—Mercury—Quicksilver! The mystery was solved."

I hate to be always interrupting my friend, but I wanted to know if he had discovered who "Mystic Mike" was.

"Oh, Yes! Oh, Yes!" replied the great investigator to my question. "I, of course, pursued my clues along the line also, and, naturally, solved the slight perplexity. Mike, you'll remember, appeared at 2 o'clock every day. Now the trouble was to find how he came and went. I followed him as he left the Pool room one day—followed him very closely—saw him enter the lounge room. When I entered almost immediately after him he had gone—disappeared. I searched everywhere, but couldn't find him. I at once came to the conclusion that a panel in the wall was arranged to form a secret door, through which the masked figure made his escape. By tapping on the walls I found that they were all solid. Great disappointment registered in my heart, but nothing daunted, I made a thorough examination of the floor and furniture. I found that which I sought. Under one of the central rugs a rectangular section of the floor some 6 feet by 2 feet could be slid to one side; under this was a pneumatic tube into which one lay, and pressing a button was shot to his destination. By going through this performance I found myself deposited on a mattress in a small room. Arising I walked over to a door—opened it and found myself on McGill College Avenue, and just ahead of me was"—and here Shomolkes leaned over to me—and in an awed tone whispered, "—of the Committee of Quarrels and Gasoline!"

"But, why," I asked in wonder, "would he want to go to all this trouble to play pool?"

"Simple! Simple! Whatsane," answered the renowned detective, "is a gay old dog, and loves his little game of pool just as you and I love our—er—well, at any rate his wife disapproves of the practice, so he sought this way out of the difficulty. He is also a crank, and cannot bear to be defeated, so he fixed up the electro magnets during the night. It was not a difficult case at all."

The cat and I raced to the door, as Shomolkes reached for his beloved accordion.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Burr for his kindness in acting as chairman. Mr. Burr then gave a brief account of the formation of the Electric Club.

An interesting programme for the current session is promised to the members. Several trips will be taken, and at present a trip to Shawinigan Falls is being discussed.

A WEEK OF PRAYER TO OPEN TO-MORROW.

To-morrow will mark the opening of a universal week of prayer for all the universities in North America. Following the usual custom at McGill, the opening here will take the form of a short talk by O. Rev. Dr. Gifford, of the Wesleyan Theological College, who will address a combined meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning in Strathcona Hall. The Bible classes will adjourn in order that the members may be present at this meeting, and it is hoped that a large number of students will take advantage of this chance to hear Dr. Gifford.

A MEETING OF THE ELECTRIC CLUB HELD

Officers Elected and Programme for Current Session Discussed.

An important meeting of the Electric Club was held yesterday in Room 64 of the Engineering Building. There was a large and enthusiastic turnout.

After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read the election of officers was proceeded with, and the following were appointed: Hon. President—Dr. L. A. Herdt. Hon. Vice-President—Prof. C. V. Christie.

Secretary—D. G. Dunbar. Treasurer—G. A. Wallace. To these were added six councillors. Then followed the treasurer's report, showing a very satisfactory balance on hand.

Mr. Gifford next gave an outline of what the club intended to do during the present year in the way of trips, lectures, and the reading of instructive papers.

of the above mentioned conference. Heretofore the practice of the British Government was never to coerce a conquered country. Yet Ontario permitted French to be taught only one hour per day, and gave German a free hand. Mr. Clarke seemed to feel that there was the thought of the French people getting absolute power in the minds of the English legislators.

The meeting was hereupon thrown open to a general discussion. John Levy, '19, led off. His remarks were in the nature of criticisms of the previous speakers. He was followed by N. Vineberg, '20, who took objection to the previous speaker's general and sweeping statements. This gentleman also referred to the fact that the Privy Council of England asked the Ontario Government not to enforce the rule too strongly.

Variety was given to the meeting at this point by the introduction of some Laval students. Mr. Renier was kind enough to address the gentlemen present, and in a very eloquent speech said he thought it was the desire of the English speaking people to do away with the French language entirely. His address brought forward an enthusiastic outburst of applause.

V. S. Green then favored the meeting with a witty speech. The friendly spirit which permeated the meeting seemed to encourage many of the audience to rise to their feet. The discussion was both lively and enjoyable, and upon its termination the gentlemen present, who voted solely on the merits of the case as shown by the arguments, decided that they were against the resolution by a two-thirds majority.

As the ice cream was now ready, all discussion ceased while the audience partook of the refreshments which were served in most generous helpings. Before the meeting adjourned, members of the audience publicly expressed their appreciation for the way the president had conducted the very successful meeting, the Society for providing a really enjoyable and entertaining evening, and sympathized with those gentlemen who were unable to be present.

Ageing and Blending ROSE QUESNEL

Native Canadian Tobacco

We have seen in our previous advertisements that, from the selection and first planting of the seed to the ultimate packing of the cured plant, it is a constant solicitude to the planter.

The tobacco, packed in bundles arrives at our warehouses where the stock is inspected, and, if the leaf appears to be well cured and of good quality it is "passed". Then the "hands" are packed upon each other in regular rows in large casks where they are compressed in a very solid mass and the casks stored in our cellars where the tobacco ages for two years. It is the slow, sure way of perfectly maturing tobacco in wooden casks which gives it that mellowed smoothness you taste in every pipeful of Rose Quesnel.

When perfectly aged the Quesnel Tobacco and Rose Tobacco, the two most fragrant and aromatic varieties of tobacco grown in Canada are blended by experts in scientific proportions, the result of years of research and experiment, and, it is then ready to be cut and packed for the trade.

ROSE QUESNEL

MILD AND NATURAL

is an ideal blend of native pipe tobacco. You cannot get greater tobacco satisfaction than ROSE QUESNEL will give you; it is free from sting or bite, does not dry or parch the mouth and it is cool, sweet, mild and fragrant.

At all dealers.

ROSE QUESNEL Tobacco is the product of the choicest natural native leaf, properly grown, dried and cured and guaranteed free from artificial flavoring and "liquoring".
It is all tobacco and nothing but tobacco.

UNCLE SALT BASIN—SHORT CUTS.

Of all our mortal ills, I think, being cut's the very worst; it comes some time to every fellow, and at it has cursed. It makes you feel like twenty mills, it takes your strength away; it turns you white about the gills and spoils the fairest day. You meet some lovely queen you know, and whom you want to please, you smile and drop a curtsey low—and then there comes a freeze! Oh, then you want to paw the air, and bite the people round, or tear your flowing golden hair, and with a strew the ground; as from your sight she slowly fades and leaves you with your pain; you vow by all the Stygian shades it won't occur again! And then, although you're not to blame, a young romance you check, and you will never be the same, your heart is broke, by heave! Ah, fairest ones, pray have a heart and hark to what I say; tho' it may seem a poisoned dart, you may be glad some day!

The writer of this superb production, Windsor Bacon, will be remembered as one of the most famous literateurs and poets of the sixteenth century. He was the author of two autobiographical sketches, "Ten Minutes in Greece," and "Out of the Frying-pan into the Fryer," and was credited with the authorship of "Hamlet," a play dealing with the evils of indigestion. Bacon was also suspected of having written "The Pork-Barrel," a dissertation on political conditions in the United States. He is widely known as the inventor of powder, giving it the name which it still bears, but which has been corrupted into "Baking-Powder."

Softly sighed the breeze of evening, and the sun sank slowly down, as upon a rustic bridge there sat a Freshie and a frown; and his brow was torn with anguish, you could see that he was thinking, (while the breeze was softly sighing, and the sun was slowly sinking). Oh, he looked extremely worried, as he chewed upon a bun; (in the softly sighing breeze, and the slowly sinking sun). Now, it seems, I've got to beat it, and I'm in an awful stew, for I simply cannot add a line to finish it can you?

Ans.—Sunbeams.

If you like that, tell others. If you don't, tell us.

Senior—Going to see Tree next week? Great actor, my boy, great actor.

Soph.—Yeh; they say his voice is of a peculiar timber; naturally wood, y' know. Regular bark, I believe.

If a Freshie owes a month's rent, would a Sophomore?

INCORRIGIBLE.

She froze him with an awful glance, As friz as fruz could be; He cried with scornful countenance "Snow difference to me!"

She froze him with a glance, I say, He cooled off in a hurry; But tho' in icicles he lay, His words were, "Ice should worry!"

She gazed upon his lifeless form, And then let fall a tear, Oh, Sad to tell, as he grew warm, He said, "I am ze'erol!"

GOLF—Continued.

Our now famous epic is still sailing along serenely; the plot thickens, so does the fog. Kindly note the meter in which this exquisite creation is written. It starts off in long, weeping Kilometer, then changes abruptly with the quickening of the action to Speedometer; it terminates the far-famed Gasometer, to which the subject is admirably adopted, and which has been so widely employed leading lights (gas and otherwise). The golfer with great skill, Will first bring forth the pill. Frank (in Students' Council Meeting): "Any business to come before this meeting?"
A Whisper: "How can any business come before this meeting now that the meeting is started?"

ANSWER TO CORRESPONDENT.

"Mae Bisseau."

The method of making an omelet most generally employed is the following. Select three dozen of the best new-laid eggs and lay them on your kitchen table. Then take a hammer and chisel and go along the line, giving each egg a sharp tap. If a piece of china flies up and into your eye, the egg is a nest egg; avoid these. When all the nest eggs have been eliminated take the other six and drop them on the floor; any egg that bounces is an imitation rubber one, and is indigestible.

Then take your remaining egg and crack it into a saucepan with two teaspoonsful of confectioner's sugar, and a pinch of celery salt. Boil violently for half an hour, then add half a cup of petroleum jelly and set aside to cool. Serve in sherbert glasses with cracked ice.

No trouble at all, dearie,

"IVA PAYNE."

BACON GRACE.

A teacher was endeavoring to make the class give a definition of the word "Grace."

"Tommy," she said, "what is the first thing your father says before commencing breakfast?"
Tommy hesitated and then replied, "Oh, father says, 'Go easy with that bacon; it's one-and-six a pound.'"

ONLY A FRESHMAN.

I'm only a Freshman, and that is just all.

I might as well be nothing at all. I'm always the last one wherever I go.

The Sophomores first is a fast rule, I know.

I don't dare to speak, and I don't dare to move.

For fear that the Sophomores shouldn't approve.

For they're always saying what I think absurd.

"Freshmen should be seen, but they shouldn't be heard."

The poor old grave Seniors, they're all a fine sort.

The Juniors are too, they are quiet; in short, it's only the Sophomores trouble me thus.

And wear out my life with their unceasing fuss.

But when I no longer a Freshman shall be, When I'm a Sophomore, they can't stop me.

I'll rule the whole college, I'll do as I please, I'll end with these Sophomores down on their knees.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

DEPARTMENT OF COLONIZATION, MINES AND FISHERIES.

The chief minerals of the Province of Quebec are Asbestos, Chromite, Copper, Iron, Gold, Molybdenite, Phosphate, Mica, Graphite, Ornamental and Building Stone, Clays, Etc.

The Mining Law gives absolute security of Title and is very favourable to the Prospector.

MINERS' CERTIFICATES.

First of all, obtain a miner's certificate, from the Department in Quebec or from the nearest agent. The price of this certificate is $10.00, and it is valid until the first of January following. This certificate gives the right to prospect on public lands and on private lands, on which the mineral rights belong to the Crown.

The holder of the certificate may stake mining claims to the extent of 200 acres.

WORKING CONDITIONS.

During the first six months following the staking of the claim, work on it must be performed to the extent of at least twenty-five days of eight hours.

SIX MONTHS AFTER STAKING.

At the expiration of six months from the date of the staking, the prospector, to retain his rights, must take out a mining license.

MINING LICENSE.

The mining license may cover 40 to 200 acres in unsurveyed territory. The price of this license is Fifty Cents an acre per year, and a fee of $10.00 on issue. It is valid for one year, and is renewable on the same terms, on producing an affidavit that during the year work has been performed to the extent of at least twenty-five days' labor on each forty acres.

MINING CONCESSION.

Notwithstanding the above, a mining concession may be acquired at any time at the rate of $5.00 an acre for SUPERIOR METALS, and $3.00 an acre for INFERIOR MINERALS.

The attention of prospectors is specially called to the territory in the North-Western part of the Province of Quebec, north of the height of land, where important mineralized belts are known to exist.

PROVINCIAL LABORATORY.

Special arrangements have been made with the POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL of LAVAL UNIVERSITY, 228 ST. DENIS STREET, MONTREAL, for the analysis of minerals at very reduced rates for the benefit of miners and prospectors in the Province of Quebec. The well equipped laboratories of this institution and its trained chemists ensure results of undoubted integrity and reliability.

The Bureau of Mines at Quebec will give all the information desired in connection with the mines and mineral resources of the Province, on application addressed to

HONORE MERCIER,

Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, Quebec.

QUALITY MAINTAINED FOR OVER 30 YEARS

ASSAULT-AT-ARMS IS PLANNED BY B. W. F.

Don. Smith, Sci. '18, is Elected Boxing Representative on Executive of Organization.

Last evening a meeting of the Boxing, Fencing and Wrestling Club was held in the Union. Don Smith, Science '18, was elected as Boxing representative to replace E. A. Livingstone, who held the position previously. The election of the Wrestling representative was postponed until the next meeting. It was decided to approach the Athletic Association in regard to financing the club, and having credit given for gymnasium if attendance at the practices was taken. The officers were to arrange for instructors in the three departments of the club.

The present members decided to hold an Assault-at-Arms early next spring, but no date was decided on, as it was too far away to set one. Among those present there were eight interested in boxing, six in wrestling and three in fencing. The following were asked to represent the different faculties: Science, H. A. Cater, '17; Medicine, J. T. Monohan, '19; Arts, R. H. Parkhill, Comm. '17.

The next meeting was called for Wednesday, November 15th, at 5 p.m. sharp, in the Union. All those who take an interest in any of the branches of the club are cordially invited to attend.

RAILWAY TRIP TO THE FRONTENAC BREWERIES

Leave the Union at 2.15 This Afternoon for Annual Inspection of Large Manufactory.

To-day, the Railway Club will make its first trip of the season when they journey to the Frontenac Breweries. This trip has always been one of the most popular in the club's schedule, and it is expected that this year will be no exception, as the sale of tickets for the club has gone on at a great rate. The party starts out from the Union this afternoon at 2.15, and proceeds directly to the Brewery. For the convenience of prospective members, tickets are on sale in the office of the Janitor of the Engineering Building any time this morning. The club has made definite arrangements for trips to various points of general interest. Next week they will inspect the interlocking plant at Windsor Station.
